We'd only been walking for half a day, but perhaps because I was trying to tread too carefully, we were making less progress than I expected. So, we decided to set up camp early. That was the first time since I cured her from the poison that we were able to sit down and have a long talk with just the two of us.

Uh...

Since I'm an apothe-cary, you can just call me that.

...Okay... I'm glad I met you...
